THERMAL UNDERWEAR

As ROSETEXTILE, we are manufacturing a wide range of products and providing the development of those products to prevent heat loss and ensure successful completion of staff's tasks in harsh terrain and climatic conditions. One of those developed product groups is thermal underwear. As a result of the feedbacks we have received from the customers suggesting that while previous products were protecting the staff from the cold outside, indoor use of these products led to perspiration and dehydration, their cuts were not suitable for anatomical structure and they had some other deficiencies, we conducted R&D researches; we started production with fabric and cut design which will provide a more efficient use and we have obtained very efficient results from these new products.
